

AN AUTHOR INDEX TO AMERICAN SPEECH, 1925—1975

THIS INDEX lists the authors of all signed articles, notes, reviews, and books reviewed, in the first fifty volumes of American Speech. It includes also the names of those who have held editorial positions with the journal. When contributions were signed with initials that could be identified confidently, the authors' names have been substituted for the initials. In a few cases, contributions have been listed under auctorial initials, with a tentative identification of the name in brackets. In a good many other cases, not even a tentative identification was possible, and only initials have been used. Except for a few notes containing clear internal evidence of their authors' identities, unsigned matter is not included in this index; most of it is certainly by the editors. Book reviews for which no reviewer is mentioned here were either anonymous or by the editors. A few anonymous and pseudonymous pieces have been identified with help from their authors. The editor will be glad to receive further corrections for the subject index that is in preparation.

Under each contributor's name, information is listed in the following order: First, titles of articles, notes, and books (reviewed by others) are given in alphabetical order; contributions to the phonetics department, which was a regular feature for some years, are listed in the appropriate alphabetical place as "phonetic trans."; "untitled notes" are so listed at the end of the alphabetical sequence of titles. Second, reviews of the works of others are listed alphabetically by the title of the work reviewed. Third, editorial positions with American Speech are listed chronologically. Fourth, biographical notes, which in later volumes came to be called "Contributors' Column," are listed chronologically under the heading "bio."

References are given by volume and page number, separated by a colon. The year of publication has been omitted. Volumes 1 through 7 began in the late summer and thus overlap years, volume 1 being 1925-26 and volume 7 being 1931-32. From volume 8 (1933) on, the publication year coincided with the calendar year. All volumes except 8 have continuous pagination; for volume 8 it is necessary to specify also the issue number (thus 8.3:54-57 should be read "volume 8, number 3, pages 54 to 57").

The typography of titles has been regularized by the use of italics for citation forms, single quotation marks for glosses, double quotation marks for quoted matter or special uses, and a dash to set off subtitles. Over the fifty-year period covered by this index, there was great variation in how such information was represented. The gain in clarity and consistency for the index seems to justify the loss in fidelity to the original. Users of this index should be aware, however, that the punctuation of titles may not conform to the originals.

THE CASE OF BULLUM VERSUS BOTUM

On 17 December 1800, Harrison Gray Otis of Massachusetts wrote Alexander Hamilton concerning a fight in the Senate over the ratification of the Treaty of Môtrefontaine between the United States and France. Toward the end of his letter, Otis observed: "The Treaty is before the Senate, and I believe will be found another chapter in the book of humiliation. All claims for spoliation, it is said, are suspended during the war, all public ships captured by each party are to be surrendered, & in the language of the case of Bullum vs Botum after paying all costs we are permitted to begin again de novo." Barbara Chernow, Associate Editor of The Papers of Alexander Hamilton, would like to identify the expression "the case of Bullum vs Botum." Can any of our readers help her?

LINGUISTICS AND PHILOSOPHY

The Dutch publishing firm of D. Reidel has announced a new journal called Linguistics and Philosophy and has issued a call for papers. The managing editor, to whom manuscripts should be sent, is Robert Wall, Department of Linguistics, University of Texas, Austin, Texas 78712. Two volumes a year, with three issues a volume (about 450 pages), are planned. Subscriptions, which are $17 a volume for private persons and $41 for libraries, can be ordered from D. Reidel Publishing Company, 160 Old Derby Street, Hingham, Massachusetts 02043.
